THE FIRST AND SECOND EPISTLES TO THE CORINTHIANS After a period of almost unparalleled prosperity, in which Corinth won for herself the name of the star of Hellas, she was totally destroyed by Mummius, in 146 B.C., and her inhabitants sold into slavery. The beauty and commercial value of her site attracted the notice of Julius Caesar, who rebuilt the city, settling it with a colony of Greek and Roman freemen, and making it the seat of government in the province of Achaia. It was not long before a large measure of its former glory returned. It again became the maritime and trading center of Greece. It was an emporium for the world s commerce. Into it poured a heterogeneous population from all quarters of the globe. Wealth and luxury brought laxity of morals. The debasing worship of Aphrodite added to the general...
